Get Involved

The battle to protect tribal self-government and the rights of native people will be won only through strong, persistent involvement by tribal leaders, native people and the general public in calling, writing and visiting their elected federal government representatives. NCAI's mission is to advocate and to provide information on current issues that will impact tribes, so everyone can join the effort.

In using the following information, NCAI highly recommends Thomas, the Library of Congress Internet resource that provides complete coverage of all Congressional bills, gives the addresses and phone numbers of all Congressional representatives, and links to every branch of the federal government. NCAI also encourages native and non-native people alike to contact their representatives in the House and Senate.
