tribes and to foster unity and cooperation among all tribes to preserve tribal sovereignty, lands, culture, and quality of life for all. The Task Force will govern its own proceedings consistent with this purpose.

Violence Against Women Task Force

Room 106 B

The Violence Against Women Task Force serves as a unified tribal voice opposed to violent crimes perpetrated against Native women.

Tribal TANF Task Force

Room 101 C

The NCAI Tribal TANF Task Force will discuss current Administrative and legislative priorities with the goal of improving the function of TANF programs for the next administration. The TANF Task Force has consistently supported goals to increase tribes' authority to administer their own family support and work readiness programs to serve tribal children and families. The Task Force will also hold a discussion of best practices across tribal governments that can serve as roadmaps for interaction with the next Administration.

12:00 – 1:00 New NCAI Member Orientation

Room 101 A

All members and officers are invited to this welcome session for new members of NCAI and a briefing on membership, committees, voting, and process. This is an opportunity to learn more about NCAI meeting policy and procedures.

National Institutes of Health Annual Tribal Consultation*

Room 102 C

1:00 – 3:30

This Tribal Consultation session is to hear feedback from tribal leaders on tribal priorities related to environmental health and mental health. The National Institutes of Health (NIH) mission, primarily achieved through research, research training and the dissemination of research findings, is to seek fundamental knowledge about the nature and behavior of living systems and to apply that knowledge to enhance health, lengthen life, and reduce illness and disability. NIH will provide brief presentations on select programs and policies during the consultation and then will solicit input on each topic. There will also be time for an open discussion in which all relevant topics can be considered. For more information, please contact Robin Kawazoe at NIHTribalCommittee@od.nih.gov.

Federal Recognition Task Force

Room 106 C

The Federal Recognition Task Force was established to address the interests of all tribes, both federally and non-federally recognized, on changes in the tribal acknowledgement process.

Tribal Leaders Meeting on Tribal Transportation

Room 101 A

The Fixing American's Surface Transportation Act (FAST Act) was enacted into law last year. This six-year transportation authorization included important tribal transportation provisions such as the expansion of tribal self-governance throughout the US Department of Transportation (DOT), data collection on safety and reporting on transportation projections, and new grant programs. This session will provide an overview of Congressional and Administrative efforts regarding the implementation of the FAST Act by officials of DOT and the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), as well as the appropriation levels for the BIA Road Maintenance Program.

Native Languages: Interagency Listening Session & NCAI Native Languages Task Force Meeting*

Room 101 C

Attend a dialogue with the Administration for Native Americans (ANA), the Bureau of Indian Education (BIE), and the White House Initiative on American Indian and Alaska Native Education (WHIAIANE) to discuss progress made to date in better coordination across federal programs and removing barriers to accessing federal resources, as specified under the Native American Languages Memorandum of Agreement, signed in November of 2012. The three agencies will also highlight a recently issued Native American Languages Progress Report (recently released). This report will include guidance for how federal agencies can further improve and support goals of the Native American Language Act. After the Interagency Native American Languages Dialogue pre-session workshop, the NCAI Native Languages Task Force will meet to discuss Native American language protection from tribal leaders' perspective.

Emergency Management Overview for Tribal Leaders (L0583)

Room 105 C

The Emergency Management Institute, part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, designed this training course for tribal leaders seeking to successfully prepare for, respond to, and recover from incidents and disasters will benefit from an understanding of emergency management concepts and operations. Added insight into emergency management concepts is even more critical in light of the 2013 amendments to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act that provide tribal governments the ability to directly request federal disaster assistance.

Protecting the Right to Vote on Election Day

Room 106 B

The General Election is rapidly approaching. American Indian and Alaska Native populations have historically suffered discrimination while voting, and the Supreme Court's decision in Shelby County gutted key provisions of the Voting Rights Act, which leaves Native voters even more vulnerable to discrimination. Equal access to voting is not only a matter of fairness, but is a fundamental civil right afforded to all citizens, including American Indians and Native Alaskans. This session will focus on the challenges that Native voters are confronted with and the voting rights laws that can protect the Native voter during this upcoming election.

Indian Health Service Consultations - Urban Confer Sessions*

Room 102 A/B

1:00 – 2:00 Proposed Rule for the Catastrophic Health Emergency Fund (CHEF)

The purpose of CHEF is to meet the extraordinary medical costs associated with the treatment of victims of disasters or catastrophic illnesses who are within the responsibility of the Service. IHS administers CHEF to reimburse certain IHS and Tribal purchased/referred care (PRC) costs that exceed the cost threshold. The proposed rule has five specific areas: 1) Definitions, 2) Threshold cost, 3) Compliance with PRC Regulations, 4) Reimbursement Procedure, and 5) Recovery of CHEF Reimbursement Funds.

2:15 – 3:30 Community Health Aides

IHS shared a draft policy statement that proposes an expansion in the use of community health aides at IHS facilities across the country. Facilities operated by Tribes and the IHS could see expanded opportunities under the new draft policy for these aides, including community health representative program, dental health aide therapists, community health aides, and behavioral health aides.

3:45 – 5:00 Tribal Premium Sponsorship

IHS shared a draft Circular to address the purchase of health care coverage, which is commonly referred to as Tribal Premium Sponsorship (Sponsorship). Sponsorship occurs when a Tribe pays health insurance premiums on behalf of IHS beneficiaries. The purpose of this draft Circular is to provide further detailed guidance to IHS Area Offices regarding the current IHS policy if a Tribe, Tribal organization, or Urban Indian organization wishes to purchase coverage for IHS beneficiaries with Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act funding or other IHS-appropriated funds. Per Section 402 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (25 U.S.C. § 1642) Indian Tribes, Tribal organizations, and Urban Indian organizations may use federally appropriated funding, to the extent it is available under law, to purchase health insurance for IHS beneficiaries.

4:00 – 6:00

Federal Infrastructure Permitting and the Trust Responsibility

The Standing Rock Sioux Tribe's fight to protect its lands, waters, sacred places, and natural resources resonated throughout Indian Country as it's just another chapter in a long history of infrastructure projects being built, on, near or through tribal homelands. Tribes are seeking meaningful consultation during the development of these projects. The upcoming listening session and consultations Department of the Interior, Department of Justice, and the Department of the Army brings a new opportunity for Indian Country to discuss the current state of tribal consultation, what needs to be changed to move the nation-to-nation relationship to a true partnership, and how can we ensure that tribal concerns regarding the natural and culture resources are adequately addressed in the federal permitting process.

The two questions for the consultation are: (1) How can Federal agencies better ensure meaningful tribal input into infrastructure-related reviews and decisions, to protect tribal lands, resources, and treaty rights within the existing statutory framework?; and (2) Should the Federal agencies propose new legislation altering the statutory framework to promote these goals?

This session will feature tribal leader presentations on infrastructure projects, perspectives on the trust responsibility and tribal consultations, the current legal framework for environmental and cultural protections. This session will prepare tribal leaders in advance of the first federal listening session in the afternoon.

This morning's session is for tribal leaders to discuss and unify in advance of the first listening session later in the day.

Constitutions for Modern Tribal Governments

Room 102 A/B

There is a growing movement among tribal nations to reform and strengthen their constitutions in order to reflect and preserve their distinct cultures and ways of life, better address their complex governance challenges in the 21st century, and advance their long-term priorities. This session will share examples of some critical ways that tribal nations are “modernizing” their foundational governing documents to more fully and effectively exercise their sovereignty and achieve the goals of their citizens. It also will seed a robust discussion among session participants about how tribal nations can best learn from one another about approaches to and lessons from constitutional change.

The Indian Child Welfare Act: Tribal Leaders Role in Promoting Child Welfare and Family Wellness

Room 106 A

The Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) creates a legal structure for how public and private child welfare agencies and state courts conduct their work to serve Native children, their families and tribes. Unfortunately, ICWA’s protections have come under attack over the last few years. In this breakout session, you will have the unique opportunity to hear the tribal leader’s perspective on the biggest issues confronting ICWA and how that continues to effect tribes across the nation. You will also receive information on strategies for enhancing your tribal child welfare programs, best practices, tribal collaboration, the importance of integrated family services, early intervention and data collection.

Seeding Prosperity: Strategic Considerations for Building Sustainable Tribal Economies
Room 212 A/B

A growing number of tribal nations are actively working to diversify their economies, and many more are pondering their own approaches for doing the same. This session will focus participants’ attention on the strategic considerations involved with building an integrated, sustainable, tribal economy. This session will address the foundational questions that tribal decision makers must ask of themselves, their governments, tribal citizens, and their current tribal economies as they design economy building approaches capable of seeding prosperous futures for their nations and communities.

The National Drug Epidemic: Tribal Nations Respond

Room 102 C

Many tribal nations are facing extreme impacts of drug abuse on their citizens, maternal and family health, and the safety of their communities. In this session, we will hear from tribal leaders working to diminish drug use, from federal partners developing resources to assist tribes in reducing the impact of illegal drugs, and from health care providers working to address the pain issues facing Native patients while preventing opioid abuse.

Moderator: Kitcki Carroll, Executive Director, United South & Eastern Tribes

Presenters:

Stephen Roe Lewis, Governor, Gila River Indian Community

Tara Mason, Secretary/Treasurer, White Earth Nation

Bob Bryant, Chief of Police, Penobscot Nation

Mike Williams, Councilor, Seneca Nation

Putting First Kids 1st: Creating Wise Practices in Native Youth Policy

Room 106 A

Tribal nations have prioritized Native youth development. In this session, we will hear presentations on state-tribal initiatives, juvenile justice policy, improving research in Native youth contexts, and data policy. We will then have a facilitated discussion with participants about how to increase awareness and use of wise practices in Native Youth policy.

Presenters:

Candida Hunter, Senior Director of Tribal Affairs, First Things First

William Mendoza, Executive Director, White House Initiative on American Indian and Alaska Native Education

Deana Around Him, Collaborative Research Center for American Indian Health (CRCAIH)
Postdoctoral Fellow, NCAI Policy Research Center

Tribal Innovation: The Springboard for Preparing Tribal Citizens for Career Success
Room 105 C

Across Indian Country, tribal nations are crafting innovative, customized solutions to their particular workforce development challenges, solutions that: (1) make real differences in the lives of Native people in search of employment and the education, skills, and experience necessary to build successful careers, and (2) strengthen tribal sovereignty in the process. Along the way, they are discarding or modifying one-size-fits-all programs and approaches that may work for governments elsewhere and that offer the bureaucratic path of least resistance for the federal government. In this session, panelists will present some proven, outside-the-box strategies for creating career opportunities and preparing tribal citizens to seize those opportunities. In addition, NCAI will unveil its “Empowering Tribal Workforce Development” policy recommendations brief for the federal government.

Presenters:

Norm DeWeaver, Former National Representative, Indian and Native American Employment and Training Coalition

Maryann McGovran, Chairwoman, North Fork Rancheria of Mono Indians of California

Gloria O’Neill, President and CEO, Cook Inlet Tribal Council

Margaret Zientek, Assistant Director of Employment and Training, Citizen Potawatomi Nation

Alex Yazza, Executive Director, Owens Valley Career Development Center

International Advocacy to Protect Tribal Sovereignty

Room 101 A/B

Panelists will provide updates on recent advances and ongoing challenges in implementing the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. Updates will include work related to implementing the Outcome Document of the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples, including the effort to create a mechanism for indigenous governments to participate at the UN as governments. The breakout session will also highlight recent developments on the issues of international repatriation, cultural protection, climate change, and addressing violence against women.

Presenters:

Frank Ettawageshik, Executive Director, United Tribes of Michigan

Tim Coulter, Executive Director, Indian Law Resource Center

Andrea Carmen, Executive Director, International Indian Treaty Council

Preston Hardison, Policy Analyst, Tulalip Tribes

Update on Tribal Lands: Land Restoration, Buy Back, and Trust Modernization

Room 102 A/B

The Obama Administration has taken many steps forward to address important and longstanding issues with tribal land restoration, the settlement trust claims, and the modernization of many laws and regulations. This session will provide an update on the current state of these programs, with a discussion on the 500,000 acre land restoration goal and implementation of new policies

Alison Grigonis, Senior Policy Advisor to the Assistant Secretary of Indian Affairs

STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering & Mathematics) Initiative for Indian Country: Developing a Tribal Workforce for the Future

Room 104 B

Changing technologies and competition for market space are leading to changes in the types of industries that tribes venture into as they seek to sustain and diversify their economies. STEM-related fields have been identified by the National Science Foundation as critically important to economic growth and competitive success. This workshop discussion will bring together tribal leaders, tribal technology representatives, and industry leaders to discuss partnerships and possible revenue sharing opportunities with an emphasis on developing our tribal workforce to meet the changing technologies and industry growth segments of a future technology-based economy.

Presenters:

John Lewis, Chairman of the Board, Gila River Indian Community Utility Authority

Maria Dadgar, Executive Director, Inter Tribal Council of Arizona

Sarah Echohawk, Chief Executive Officer, American Indian Science and Engineering Society

Elder Issues in Indian Country

Room 105 A/B

Join Native elders, tribal leaders, and the National Indian Council on Aging in a discussion about the role that tribal nations play in elderly care. Social services and economic wellbeing of our elders are important for the endurance of all tribes. Elders are our cultural bearers, and are held in the highest regard in all tribal communities. It is the responsibility of all tribal nations to protect the wellbeing of our elders through sustainable, tribally driven policies. This session will focus on a needed conversation around long-term care, Elder Equity, the Senior Community Service Employment program, and the Tribal Footprints Elder Resource Directory.

Moderator: Rebecca Morgan, Elder Equity Care Project Coordinator, National Indian Council on Aging

Presenter:

James DeLaCruz, Sr., Board Chairman, National Indian Council on Aging

Randella Bluehouse, Executive Director, National Indian Council on Aging

Aaron Payment, Chairman, Sault Ste. Marie Tribe
